David Bagwell Resigns as Chairman

David Bagwell of Hilton Head Island resigned as chairman of the Cosmetology Board on September 13, 1999. Bagwell has been a Board member since 1996. He served as chairman for 2 1/2 years. He also served as vice chairman of the Board in the 1980s. Although he resigned as chairman, he is still an active Board member and will continue to serve in that capacity until March 31, 2000.

Message From Chairwoman Pat Adams

As the newly elected chairwoman, I approach the chairmanship with excitement and enthusiasm, but also with sadness that David Bagwell resigned as chairman. At this time, I would like to express thanks from the Board to David for the many years of service to this Board and the entire cosmetology industry. Not very many people in the industry have given as much time and effort as David, and this Board will greatly miss his leadership.

The September Board meeting held in Greenville attracted many new faces and a welcome number of students. By all accounts, it was a very successful first "on the road" meeting. The Board members also enjoyed a very successful conference in Montana in August.

David, Ruth, Echo, Katherine and myself would like to have you join us in welcoming a new Board member: Rosanne Kinley, an esthetician from Anderson. We are all very excited about working with Rosanne now and in the future.

A friendly reminder to all the licensees: Please remember your CEU hours and the license renewal date of March 10.

Welcome To Our New Esthetics Board Member

The Cosmetology Board has a new member, Rosanne Kinley, from Anderson. She was appointed to fill the esthetician seat on the Board. Kinley received her training from Esthetics International in 1985 and received her manicuring license earlier that year. After practicing both esthetics and manicuring in a salon for a year, she opened her own salon and currently employs six hairdressers, another manicurist, a massage therapist and herself in the practice of esthetics. Kinley is married and a stepmother to three boys. Her hobbies include collecting memorabilia from the "Singing Cowboy Era," participating in civic and charitable organizations and in politics during the campaign season.

Board Attends NIC Conference

The 44th annual conference of the National Interstate Council of State Boards of Cosmetology was held August 25-29, 1999, in Whitefish, Mont., with more than 40 state boards attending. Former Chairman David Bagwell and each of South Carolina's Board members, Board Administrator Eddie Jones and Attorney Sarah Clingman attended.

The educational theme was "Stretching into the Millennium." The sessions were very informative, covering cosmetology, estheticians and manicuring. Sanitation and sterilization were stressed because Hepatitis and nail diseases are easily spread when strict sanitation procedures are compromised. Hepatitis B and C strains spread faster and are more dangerous than the AIDS virus.

The NIC conference showed that the millennium will bring electronic testing for candidates in cosmetology, manicuring and esthetics. Several states are now offering the multiple choice electronic test. The testing fee is higher than South Carolina's current testing fee, and in order for the State Board to consider implementing electronic testing, it must have Legislative approval to increase the current fee. If the Board chose to honor electronic testing, the candidates could have a choice of sitting for the multiple choice written test or the electronic test. The practical exam would remain the same and would be taken first if electronic testing becomes available.

During the "Problem Solving Round Table" discussions there were interesting points made for "credit hours" versus "clock hours." The South Carolina Board supports "clock hours" only. Currently, cosmetology school "clock hours" are 1,500; manicurist "clock hours" are 300; and esthetician "clock hours" are 450. The mobility of the professionals in the beauty industry made the discussion of reciprocity very important to all of the State's Board members. Former Chairman Bagwell is confident that the reciprocity policy that the State Board has in place and follows will grant reciprocity to candidates who hold a current license in a state whose requirements are equal to or higher than South Carolina.

First Board Meeting on the Road

The State Board held a historic meeting on September 13, 1999, in Greenville, S.C. This was the first time a State Board meeting has been held away from the home office in Columbia. The meeting was well attended by many professionals in the area as well as several students from the local beauty schools. When the meeting closed, the State Board members and all those present were invited by Ken Lochridge to visit his new school for some refreshments. This was planned as a surprise birthday party for Katherine Busby and a time to get acquainted with our newest Board member, Rosanne Kinley. The November 8th meeting will be held in Charleston.

Ruth Settles Reappointed

Ruth E. Settles, of Greenville, was re-appointed by the Governor on September 7, 1999, to serve on the Cosmetology Board until March 20, 2002. Settles has served on the Board since April 1996 and has served as vice chairman since 1998. Settles is a licensed cosmetologist and instructor and owns La Charme Coiffures in Greenville.

Governor Launches Worker Safety Campaign

Gov. Jim Hodges and the South Carolina Department of Labor, Licensing and Regulation have launched a statewide campaign to bring attention to a free and innovative program designed to make South Carolina work places safer.

Under the theme, SafetyWorks!, the governor is urging employers across the state to take advantage of the free services offered by the S.C. Office of OSHA Voluntary Programs (S.C. OVP). The program, which is independent of S.C. OSHA's enforcement arm, offers expert advice and hands-on help to companies across the state.

The ultimate goal of S.C. OVP is to make sure employers are providing work sites that are safe and healthy for employees.

"I can think of no better way to pay tribute to this state's work force than to launch a campaign to create safer and healthier work places," Gov. Hodges said.

LLR Director Rita M. McKinney said S.C. OVP's staff is ready to help South Carolina businesses make their work places safe and healthy.

"The OVP team has 200 years of experience in industries ranging from textiles to construction to health care, at both large and small companies. They offer long-term experience to solve a long-term problem," McKinney said. "All we ask is that businesses give us an opportunity."

The governor launched the campaign at news conferences in Greenville and Columbia.

The Greenville news conference was held at KEMET Electronics Corp.,

Consultation, Training Only a Request Away

If you would like to take advantage of OVP's free services, here's what you need to know:

The consultation process starts with a written request from a business, by facsimile or by mail, on company stationary. The request is assigned to a safety and health consultant with expertise in the particular field. The consultant contacts the company by phone and arranges a convenient time for both parties.

On the appointed day, the consultant goes to the work site. He or she meets with representatives of the business and collects information about the employer's accident history, experience with OSHA and information about the company's safety program, if one exists.

The consultant explains that the employer is responsible for correcting, controlling or eliminating all hazards identified within the time frames agreed upon. Failure to do so results in a referral to OSHA enforcement.

After the information gathering stage, the consultant asks a company representative to accompany him or her on a tour of the facility. For example, in manufacturing, the consultant follows the process of whatever the company is making from beginning to end. The flow of the product is followed from the time raw materials are received, through the manufacturing process and until the time it is shipped out the door. On a construction site, the consultant starts the tour at the job trailer and works his or her way to the front door of the facility. On a high-rise, the consultant starts at the bottom and works up to the top.

During the tour, the consultant talks with employees to learn about working conditions and to see if they have concerns about safety. On the tour, the consultant looks for OSHA safety and health violations and unsafe acts or conditions.

At the closing conference, the consultant discusses options for correcting, controlling or eliminating hazards identified. Time frames are discussed and negotiated. Shortly after the visit, the company receives a written report that summarizes the consultant's findings and the agreed upon time periods for correction, control or elimination.

Businesses may request free training for employees on a variety of safety and health topics by submitting a request in writing to OVP, by facsimile or by mail.

The request is assigned to a training coordinator with expertise on the particular subject. The trainer negotiates with the company a time and place to provide the training.

In addition to training classes conducted at the company's work site, OVP offers regional training programs around the state throughout the year on a variety of safety and health issues.

OVP can be reached by phone at (803) 734-9599, by fax at (803) 734-9741 or by email at scovp@mail.llr.state.sc.us.

Fountain Inn Plant. KEMET uses S.C. OVP services.

“At KEMET, we consider the Office of OSHA Voluntary Programs to be a vital member of our health and safety team,” said KEMET’s President and Chief Operating Officer Charles Culbertson. “If they were not available to give us their help and support, we would have to pay big bucks to a private consulting organization for the same services OVP provides to any South Carolina company for free.”

Culbertson continued: “Not only is the service provided by the Office of OSHA Voluntary Programs something that all South Carolina companies can afford – it is something no South Carolina company can afford to be without.”

The Columbia news conference was held at the M.B. Kahn Construction Company, White Knoll High School construction site, in Lexington County. M.B. Kahn also uses S.C. OVP’s services.

“After a S.C. OVP visit, accidents decrease and productivity picks up,” said

Daniel Wessinger, safety manager at M.B. Kahn. “On one particular job, we were having an incident rate of about 25 to 30. After a S.C. OVP visit, our incident rate went down to 5.

“People on the job site know the basics, but after a while they get complacent,” Wessinger said. “The OVP consultant brings everyone’s attention back to safety.”

OVP can provide assistance to employers in three ways:

- Consultations by safety and health professionals who can help employers spot workplace problems before they can cause injury or illness. Records are kept confidential.
- Training classes for employees covering the key safety issues they face each day from personal protective equipment to fall protection to violence in the workplace. In addition to regularly scheduled classes across the state, S.C. OVP can bring tailor-made classes to the worksite.

- Phone consultations to answer questions about safety regulations and resources.

As part of the SafetyWorks! campaign, S.C. OVP has a new website on the Internet, which is an invaluable resource to businesses for getting information about OVP services and work place safety in general. The address is:

“I encourage all South Carolina employers to put the OVP team at LLR to work for your business,” the governor said. “Safety works!”

New Policy: Disruption in a CEU Class

At its November 8th meeting, the Board voted to adopt the following policy:

In cases where there is a documented case of disruption during a CEU class, the Board will support the disciplinary action taken by the provider to address the disruption.

OSHA isn't a four letter word in South Carolina.

“I’ll admit we were afraid of the punitive side of OSHA. But the S.C. OVP individuals quickly developed a teaching relationship with us. They have taught us a great deal, and they are welcome in our facility anytime.”
