“RESIDENT LICENSEE IN RESPONSIBLE CHARGE” INFORMATION

The applicant must have at least one individually licensed person to serve as a resident licensee in responsible charge of each branch and supervise the field and office building work or services provided from that branch. This must be a licensed home builder, licensed home inspector, a licensed specialty contractor or registered specialty contractor depending on the nature of the firm’s activities. The resident licensee in responsible charge means a licensed/registered practitioner who spends a majority of each normal workday working out of a principal or branch office and who is in responsible charge of the office and the services provided from that office including, but not limited to, responsibility for applying for any building permits for the firm.
